BEST reform bill dies in spec. session

"Gunslinger" bill passes

BY TRACI BONNEY

BEST is dead — for now. Senator Vic Frankiewicz said Saturday afternoon that the education reform package proposed by Gov. Ray Mabus would die at midnight. The bill's death was cemented, he said, when the Mississippi House of Representatives adjourned without approving funding or any sort of extension for it. The Senate had voted to extend the deadline for funding BEST — or Better Education for Success Tomorrow — but without House action, the bill will "stay in limbo" until the next regular session, Frankiewicz said.

"At least it didn't self-destruct," he added. "If it had, the legislature would have to start from scratch on it next session. That (the bill not self-destructing) has been the only bright spot in an otherwise dismal session."

Other matters being considered were a "gunslinger" bill and an anti-drug bill.

Frankiewicz said the "gunslinger" bill, which allows anyone to apply for a permit to carry a concealed weapon, will go into effect at midnight.

"That bill was passed accidentally in regular session," he remarked. "It was a bad bill. I don't think anyone realized just what kind of risk such a bill will put people or law officers at."

"The governor passed it with the understanding that all the parties involved — the NRA (National Rifle Association), law enforcement officials and others — would work to reach a compromise to clean up the problems with the bill."

"That compromise bill is what just fell through."

Frankiewicz said this means that anyone can apply for a permit to carry a concealed weapon, and that it must be granted unless the applicant is insane, a convicted felon, habitually drunk or addicted to drugs.

"It puts people in danger. With people packing sidearms, what was a barroom brawl can now turn into a shootout. People can carry weapons in their cars, so this could mean more officer deaths from simple traffic violations stops."

The anti-drug bill was still alive when the Senate adjourned, Frankiewicz said, but a House provision allowing violent offenders to go on community work service projects had kept the Senate from passing the bill.

He said the Senate had to decide whether to pass the bill with the provision, or kill the bill.

The bill will strengthen anti-drug laws, provide more law enforcement personnel and assistant district attorneys in some areas, and outline procedures for employers to use drug testing in the workplace.

Don't let unsafe fireworks practices ruin the holiday

See related story, page 8A

BY LIZ HAAS

Independence Day — the fourth of July — is most widely celebrated with the use of colorful, beautiful, yet potentially harmful fireworks.

Since the holiday falls this year on Wednesday, the middle of the week, most people will be celebrating the holiday this weekend.

The Bay St. Louis and Waveland Fire and Police Departments as well as the Hancock County Sheriff's Department advise members of the community to be careful when using fireworks.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said Hancock County must follow the state law, where there is no provision concerning fireworks sale and use.

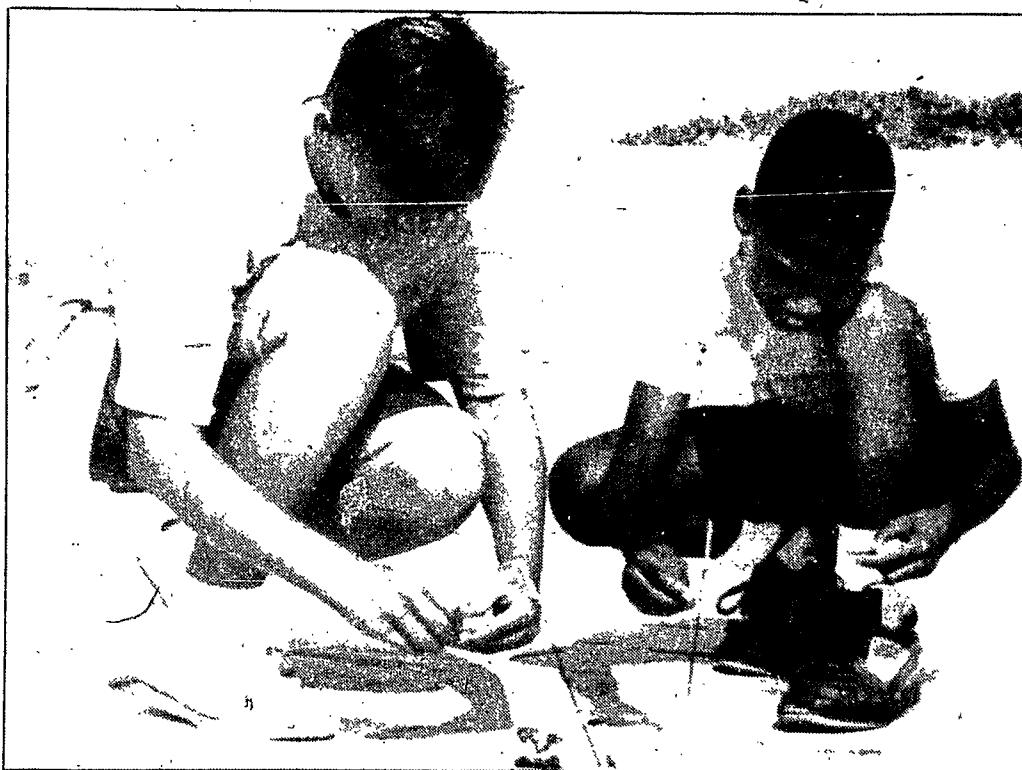

He said there have been problems in the past with the use of bottle rockets, and suggests that people not to shoot them in residential areas.

He also encourages adult supervision for children who are shooting fireworks.

Bay St. Louis and Waveland have their own city ordinances concerning fireworks sale and use.

Investigator Tom Burleson of the Bay St. Louis Police Department said the ordinance allows the sale and use of fireworks 10 days prior to the holiday until midnight of the night of the fourth.

The ordinance also makes it unlawful to throw fireworks into or on a street, avenue, alley or sidewalk. Loud and unusual noises are also prohibited in residential areas because of annoyance and injury to health. In case of violation, a neighbor may report the incident to the police department.

Dave Stepro of the Waveland Police Department said people may begin purchasing and using fireworks approximately two weeks before the holiday and continue until July fifth.

Stepro said people caught using fireworks outside of the prescribed time will receive a strict warning. If children are involved, the warning may be followed by an oral report to their parents.

School board hopes to fund budget without tax increase

BY TRACI BONNEY

Read their lips — no new taxes.

At least, that's what the members of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board hope to say when they adopt the 1990-91 district budget.

About 20 people, including Mayor Edward A. "Eddie"

Favre, attended the public hearing held by the board on the proposed budget Thursday night.

District business manager Garland Cuevas outlined the proposed $8,005,206 budget, which included hiring classroom, computer lab and library aides; giving a five percent salary increase to noncertified personnel; and funding a vocational program at the Pearl River Community College facility at Stennis Field.

These programs, which the board suggested funding with a five percent homeowners tax increase, may be paid for without the increase if the board can trim approximately $15,000 from its budget proposal.

Favre recommended that the board consider making the necessary cuts to prevent a tax increase. He said the board had a chance to do something he had never heard of before — going from one school year to the next without "getting into the taxpayers' pocketbooks any more than you already are."

Superintendent Robert Magee called the proposal a "bare-bones budget," but added, "We can take a look at it and see if we can trim the money."

The board will adopt the final draft of the budget July 9 at its regular board meeting.

Other business addressed included:

—accepting the resignation of Jean Patterson, a gifted class teacher at North Bay Elementary and Waveland Elementary;

—accepting Magee's recommendation to transfer Thomas Laird from a position as a high school science teacher to that of guidance counselor;

—and passing a motion to accept the amended 1989-90 budget.

Cuevas explained that amending the budget meant adjusting accounts and line items so that the district would be in compliance with legal guidelines.

Family seeks help to save house

BY TRACI BONNEY

Dennis and Laura Farve face the possible condemning and loss of their Morgan Park subdivision house, unless help can be found.

Concerned Citizens of Hancock County is attempting to provide that help.

Geraldine Lang and other members of the nonprofit organization are seeking materials, finances and volunteers to either repair or rebuild the rundown house, and a place for the family to stay while the work is being done.

"We may have to tear the house down," Lang said, "but we'll have some men look at it first to see if anything can be done."

Laura Farve, 64, said the house needs work from floor to roof and everywhere in between. "It's all in bad shape," she commented.

The group is appealing to Bay St. Louis's Community Action Agency for any assistance they may give, as well as to any other organization that will help.

Lang said she contacted Habitat for Humanity, but was told that organization was unable to help at this time.

Farve said her husband, who is 71, has been in the hospital and is unable to work now. His hospitalization and recovery have kept him from earning money to keep up the house or pay the bills.

"He's doing better, but he still can't work," she said.

In addition, three of the Farves' children still live with them, one of whom is mentally handicapped.

Lang said those of the Farves' children who can help with the house are being asked to do so.

She added that the group wants to get started on the work as soon as possible, and to have the house finished — repaired or rebuilt — before winter.

As Farve talked about her husband, children and house, neither voice nor expression exhibited the fear or desperation one might expect from a woman facing the loss of her home. She seemed matter-of-fact as she said, "I just hope and pray that we get help with the house, because we need it."

Bay Council July meeting rescheduled

The only local council meeting affected by the July 4 holiday is the Bay St. Louis City Council meeting, which will be held July 5 at 7 p.m. instead of July 3.

Both the Bay St. Louis-Waveland and Hancock County school boards, and the Waveland Board of Aldermen, will meet at their regularly scheduled times.

Closures for Independence Day include the Sea Coast Echo office, libraries, post offices, local and state government offices and banks.

Air Force seeks info from former servicemen

During the past decade, the Office of Air Force History in Washington D.C., has published a variety of books covering such diverse topics as Vietnam, basing, Air interdiction, and recently, a history of the Chairmen of the Joint Chiefs of Staffs.
Now the Office of Air Force

History is researching the history of the air Force enlisted forces. To ensure an accurate account of the enlisted contribution to the United States Air Force, the office is asking all prior Air Force service members, whether career or one-term enlistees, who served between 1939-1973, to fill out a questionnaire about their Air Force experience.

"This will be a history of your story—help us make it the best we can," explained Dr. Richard Kohn, chief of the Office of Air Force History.

Selecting trusts

A trust is a legal arrangement by which an individual transfers assets to a trustee who manages the assets for the benefit of those designated in the trust instrument. Any type of asset—cash, stocks, bonds, life insurance and real estate—can be put into a trust.

A trust can be created by a trustor for the benefit of himself, friends, family members, a college, a hospital, a library, a charitable organization or any other type of institution.

There are two basic kinds of trusts—testamentary and living.

A testamentary trust is created by a will and does not take effect until the will is declared valid by the court. The purpose of the trust is to place assets with a trustee who has good management and investment skills and will manage them wisely for the beneficiaries.

A living trust is created by a person during his lifetime to operate for his own benefit or for the benefit of another person.

A trust of this type could be created by a person who is too busy to worry about investment responsibilities. This person depends upon an expert's help and assistance to manage investments for him.

The following pointers can be helpful in deciding to establish a trust:

*The decision to form a trust has consequences for the trust maker and beneficiaries. Explore these consequences with experienced professional counsel to insure that the proposed arrangement is not in violation of existing tax laws.

Be cautious of proposals such as the "pure equity trust" that "guarantee" freedom from payment of all taxes in all circumstances.

*If tax minimization is a major objective, ask about the tax consequences of the trust—at the time it is created, while it is in operation and when it terminates—before you create a trust.

*Inquire about the costs of administering the trust, the trustee fees and other costs which are imposed before creating the trust.

The fee involved will vary depending on the size of the assets of the trust.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

By Janet McQueen

Many hats fit Chevis family; and they wear them all well

Dr. Sidney Chevis is as skillful with a hammer and saw as with a stethoscope. The Bay St. Louis physician "single-handedly keeps Our Lady Academy together" according to principal Sister Jacqueline Howard.

"I have nothing in my budget for capital improvements," she said. "He is capital improvements."

Along with his wife, Mary Doug, Chevis is also responsible for coordinating maintenance at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church. Mary Doug organizes (and joins) volunteer cleaning crews while Sidney is likely to be found painting, shoveling concrete or hammering. Just don't look for him at a meeting. Reverend Peter Mockler, OLG pastor, said Chevis is "action oriented" and not inclined to be on boards or planning committees.

"As an example, when the committee met to plan a walkway to the shrine (a fundraising effort), Sidney sat in on the meeting for a few minutes and told me to call him when we could turn him loose with a wheelbarrow of concrete," said Father Mockler.

"When the inside of the church needed painting, Sidney organized and led the work. What would have cost the church $30,000 didn't amount to a fraction of that," he said.

Chevis regards the work as relaxation—and takes pride in seeing things through to the finish.

He learned plumbing and carpentry skills from his father, and worked (with the help of Mary Doug) his way through medical school.

"It's easier to fix things than it is to fix people," he said, finding carpentry an outlet to relieve the stress of a career in medicine.

A typical day includes rounds at Hancock Medical Center at 6 a.m., office visits until 2-3 p.m., hospital rounds again; then he changes hats to tackle never-ending lists of maintenance chores at the church or school.

Lately, the couple has helped with the annual Fourth of July Crab Festival, where families work together to supplement the church's budget.

"I wouldn't hesitate to say Sidney works 40 hours a week on top of his job," said Sister Jacqueline. "And Mary Doug is right by his side. They are truly a wonderful family and a perfect twosome."

The couple has three children, Karen, 22; Billy, 17; and Patty, 15; and a grandchild. In addition, they have provided 25 babies with a loving, nurturing—and temporary—home while waiting for adoption.

Through Catholic Charities, an adoption placement agency, they welcome infants right out of the hospital.

Most stay an average of four months, until adoptive parents are approved.

These tiny babies in the Chevis clan are a familiar sight to local residents. The last one was adopted in December of 1989. Each one receives the loving attention of the whole family.

And so it is with the Chevis family.

"In my 17 years of working with parishioners, no one has even come close to the generosity of Sidney and Mary Doug," said Father Mockler.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

July is the month the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce begins its New Neighbor Hospitality Program.

The chamber will be delivering newcomer packages to new residents containing goodies from some 25 area Hospitality Boosters.

Cards will be enclosed from Mississippi Power and Coast Electric for new hook-ups to be returned to the two power companies, or one may call the chamber office.

The packets to newcomers are to be delivered by Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) members.

I am glad to see this program once again initiated within Hancock County.

It seems the chamber has been really busy in recent weeks. Another project it is involved in will be the welcoming of the International Rally of the Telephone Pioneers Family Campers.

Starting about July 21 some 500 campers with about 1,500 members of the Telephone Pioneers will begin arriving at Buccaneer State Park for the organization's annual meeting.

The chamber will have welcome booths at Buccaneer offering whatever assistance they can along with some 500 welcome bags.

Libby Roland, chamber executive director, reports the welcome bags will contain all sorts of items, and interested businesses may contact her at her office.

The chamber will also sponsor a red beans and rice dinner, and there will even be a mini-parade. I am told it will be a combination St. Patrick's-Mardi Gras affair to give the visitors a taste of the area.

This will be the first time for the Family Campers to use a state park for their annual meeting, and preparations have been going on for more than a year.

I am looking forward to the group's visit to Hancock County.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

The flag is sacred

During the night of Sept. 13, 1814, the British fleet bombarded Fort M'Henry in the harbor at Baltimore, Md., Francis Scott Key, a 34-year-old lawyer-poet watched the attack from the deck of a British prisoner-exchange ship.

As the battle ceased on the following morning, Key turned his telescope to the fort and saw that the American flag was still waving. The sight so inspired him that he pulled a letter from his pocket and began to write the poem which eventually was adopted as the national anthem of the United States—"The Star-Spangled Banner." He later explained:

I saw the flag of my country waving over a city—the strength and pride of my native State—a city devoted to plunder and desolation by its assaults. I witnessed the preparation for its assaults. I saw the array of its enemies as they advanced to the attack. I heard the sound of battle, the noise of the conflict fell upon my listening ear, and told me that 'the brave and the free' had met the invaders.

There really is something special about America's relationship to its flag. The term "desecration"—rooted in the word "sacred"—endows this thoroughly secular object with near-religious meaning, and America's flag, say the historians, carries cultural and emotional burdens that in most societies are spread among various other symbols and rituals.

As a country that is not based on a single ethnic group or race or religion, the United States anchors its unity in ideas and its humanly-created symbols. We don't have royalty. We never had an established church in the European sense. There's no other national symbol but the flag. The flag and all it stands for is sacred and worth protecting. Burning or desecrating the flag is not acceptable behavior.

It always interests me when constitutional scholars spring up in the Congress to cite constitutional limitations as their excuses for impeding legislative actions.

The Constitution's first amendment states: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech..."

To the American people—the laymen out there—the term "speech" is very clear. Webster's defines speech as the faculty of expressing thought and emotion by spoken words; the power of speaking.

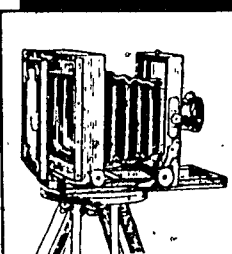

It's not expression, not demonstration, not burning the flag. Everyone can speak as they choose; we will live with that. But burning the American flag is something more than freedom of speech. It is expression, a dastardly expression that the American people reject.

We have amended the Constitution before. We have done it in dealing with intoxicating liquors, the right of people to vote, prohibiting a President from serving more than two terms, and the poll tax. When it was a serious, important issue, America has amended our Constitution.

The flag is an important issue. If we do not pass a constitutional amendment, we will see the American flag trampled, burned, and desecrated in any untold number of ways.

Several weeks ago I visited with the Mississippi Association of the Disabled American Veterans in Meridian. These are folks who did not make the supreme sacrifice, but they

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Senator Thad Cochran

Cochran supporting forestry stewardship program for Mississippi

Senator Thad Cochran is sponsoring legislation establishing a forestry stewardship program to enhance timber management.

"Forestry is one of our major money-makers," the Senator said as the Senate Agriculture Committee marked up the forestry title of the omnibus 1990 farm bill. Last year, the cash value of forestry in Mississippi totaled $640 million, up from $612 million in 1988.

He is cosponsoring, with Sen. Wyche Fowler (D-Ga.) and others, the Timber Research, Education and Enhancement Act of 1990. They hope to include its provisions in the farm bill now under consideration.

The forestry stewardship program would provide owners of nonindustrial private forest lands with technical assistance for multiple use management plans through the State Forester's office. It would expand existing educational and technical assistance programs, and authorizes $25 million to bring 25 million acres of private forest land under voluntary stewardship management.

The measure would reemphasize the importance of the McIntire-Stennis research program and establish fellowship programs for graduate and undergraduate students of accredited forestry schools.

Another feature of the bill would authorize $100 million for fire protection.

Financial, technical and other assistance would be provided state foresters and other appropriate officials to train, equip and promote state and local fire-fighting forces to respond to the needs for area, regional and national mobilization.

The bill also seeks to help provide economic development and rural revitalization through increased marketing of forestry and wood products.

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor Ray Mabus

Governor urges use of auto seat belts

Now that summer is here, Mississippians will be taking to the roads on vacations, family visits and trips around our recreation-rich state.

The first thing we should do when we get in our cars is buckle up, even if we're just going across town to a high-school reunion.

Many Mississippians lose their lives every year on our roads and highways. By doing the simple act of fastening our safety belts before we start our engines, we can protect ourselves from serious injury in the event of an accident.

Another important thing to remember about safety belts is that, in Mississippi, it's against the law if you fail to buckle up.

Our safety belt law says that everyone in the front seat is required, by law, to wear safety belts.

This recently enacted law has already made our state's highways a safer place for motorists and their passengers. By buckling up, you reduce the risk of serious injury or death by one-half in a crash.

Those states that have safety belt laws are already seeing incredible success in saving lives. For instance, in just three states, there has been an average reduction of nearly 30 percent in fatalities the first year following the enactment of a safety belt law.

Based on that figure, Mississippi should see a reduction of approximately 200 fatalities and over 7,000 injuries during the first 12 months.

Wearing a safety belt is also a bottom-line issue. When Mississippians save lives, they also save money. Our projections show that in the first year of the new safety belt law, we could see an economic savings of approximately $164 million in health care and insurance costs.

Another matter that is worth mentioning is that presently, any child under the age of two must be seated in an approved child restraint device. If you're caught driving without having the child in an approved child restraint device, you will be fined $25.

By using safety belts and child restraint devices when we travel during the vacation season, we'll not only ensure a safe vacation, but we'll ensure that we'll be able to return home alive to tell our friends all about it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

U. S. takes no political prisoners

Editor,
We all agree that flag burning is a political statement, and we all agree that we should not be imprisoned for our political views.

This great country has always been proud of the fact, that it takes no political prisoners.

The Star Spangled Banner would cease to wave o'er the land of the free if ever our jails were filled with political prisoners. Enough said!

Fireworks safety guidelines offered

BY LIZ HAAS

Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizana offers the following suggestions and safety tips to those community members who may be using fireworks this fourth of July:

- Never allow fireworks to be discharged inside
- Always provide adequate adult supervision during the use of fireworks
- Be extra careful with fireworks when small children are present
- Keep fireworks at a safe distance
- Do not light fireworks near wooded areas, dry brush or roofs
- Never hold fireworks in your hands or throw them in the direction of other people or vehicles
- Rockets should not be used unless they are aimed at or over water

—Be considerate of neighbors and property when using fireworks (Do not discharge them early in the morning or late at night.)

Lizana also advises never to use homemade fireworks and to remember that careless use of fireworks can result in injuries, medical expenses and lawsuits.

Waveland Fire Chief David Garcia says people should not touch an unexploded firework for 15 minutes after use; no smokers should be around the storage of fireworks; and people should not discharge fireworks if they are under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Board accepts low bid for jail air conditioning

BY TRACI BONNEY

Joe Hutzler Mechanical Services Inc., of Gulfport, received the bid to install air conditioning at the Hancock County jail at the Friday meeting of the Board of Supervisors.

Hutzler's bid of $34,000 was the lowest of three bids for the contract.

Air conditioning the jail, a matter of mild controversy among some local residents, will enable the jail to continue operating. The jail bases its operating budget, currently about $500,000 a year, mainly on money received from the government for housing federal prisoners brought to the county by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

INS informed the county several weeks ago that if the jail were not air conditioned, the prisoners would be removed and the money would no longer be given.

In addition to accepting

Hutzler's bid, the board:

—accepted a $650 check from the Pearl River Basin Development District for emergency repairs made at McLeod Water Park when a water pump failed;

—adopted a fire safety program for county buildings and employees;

—accepted a request from the Hancock County School District for funds to cover a shortfall brought on by tax collection deficits;

—and voted to draft a resolution in support of the state's appeal for emergency funds for flood damage that occurred Mother's Day.

The vote came at the recommendation of Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin, who explained that the federal government had turned down the state's request for a disaster declaration.

Boudin urged the board to show its support for Gov. Ray Mabus' appeal of the decision.

Four Picayune women charged with assault

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department arrested four Picayune women Friday and charged each of them with aggravated assault and armed robbery, according to Investigator Matt Karl.

Arrested were Peggy Norris, 41; Tonie Palmisano, 28; Tana Stockstill, 22; and a 17-year-old being charged as an adult.

The four were arrested and charged after allegedly beating and stealing a purse containing about $30 from Sandra Oglesbee, 29, of Picayune.

Karl said the incident occurred in Hancock County off Hwy. 43 near Hickory Creek and resulted from an alleged domestic problem.

He added that firearms are reported to have been involved in the beating, and that Oglesbee sustained bruises in several areas.

The four women were incarcerated in the Hancock County jail under $5,000 bond, each. Palmisano was bonded out, Karl said.

A preliminary hearing has been set for July 3.

made a sacrifice. They are disabled veterans from fighting, defending, and protecting Americans and the freedom of speech. They followed that flag into battle time and time again.

I wish my colleagues in the Congress could hear these veterans' emotional reactions to the flag. It is not just a piece of cloth for them. It stands for everything that they fought for and believe in.

I don't think Congress can go to them and say, "Gee whiz, sorry fellas, we cannot write a law; we cannot amend the Constitution; we just cannot do this."

We call the Constitution a living, changing document. We should not amend it frivolously. We should do it carefully, after a lot of thought and a lot of debate. But this is one instance where we have no other alternative. There is no other way. We should amend the Constitution to stop the desecration of the American flag.

Gaudin named BHS head football coach

The Bay St. Louis Waveland School District has appointed Rocky Gaudin as the head football coach at Bay High School for the upcoming season.

Joining Gaudin will be assistant coaches Stace McRaney and Walt Esslinger.

Gaudin comes to Bay High from Hancock North Central High School, where he coached for the past 12 years.

"I am very excited about coming to Bay High, and we want to restore the fine athletic tradition at the school," commented Gaudin.

"My number one priority is to stabilize the program. Bay High has had six coaches in the past five years, and I want to establish a staff that will be here for many years to come."

Gaudin indicated that he wants to establish a cohesive coaching staff before he meets with his players. With the exception of the Bay High Boosters Club, which had 25 people at its last meeting, prospects for the upcoming season look very bright for the Tigers.

"I've talked with J.E. Loiacano and have thanked him for getting things started. There's a lot of work to be done, but it's not going to be too long before we bring Bay St. Louis back to what it's known for," Gaudin said.

The Tigers dressed out approximately 25 players for their spring jamboree games. Bay High dropped both jamboree contests against Pearl River Central and East Central.

"We want to bring some pride back into the program. We want the community have pride in it, and we want to bring back the winning tradition."

"The main focus of our coaching staff will be to try and get as many kids as possible involved in the program. That may sound simple, but nowadays it is not that easy to do. Kids have so many other activities that can occupy their time," continued Gaudin.

As a defensive coach at HNC, Gaudin was well-liked by his players for the enthusiasm and personal interest that he showed in them. Being a very emotional and expressive coach, Gaudin uses a "hands-on" philosophy.

"At our first practice each season, I used to gather my players together and ask them one question: 'Why are you out here playing football?'"

"The older ones would smile because they knew the answer—that they should be playing football to have fun."

Boosted by a solid young program led by Cleveland Williams, the Tigers will be fundamentally sound as Gaudin begins building his football program.

"Initially, I want to put in an offensive and defensive system that the kids will be familiar with from grades seven through 12. I also want to establish a good off-season program."

The Tigers open up their season in the fall with a home game against Pearl River, La. and play a district schedule including larger schools.

A native of Pearlinton, Gaudin attended Bay Junior High in seventh through ninth grades. A rezoning of the district after his freshman year brought him to Hancock North Central, where he played football.

He went on to Pearl River Community College and continued his football career as an offensive lineman. He is a graduate of USM.

During the upcoming school

year, Gaudin will teach science at Bay High School.

"I would like to thank the Hancock North Central community for their support over the years. I am also appreciative of the people at Bay High, particularly Mr. Magee and Mr. James for giving me this opportunity," Gaudin said.

Six charged with catching undersized fish

Six recreational fishermen arrested recently by conservation officers in the state's Marine Resources Division for possession of undersized fish.

Conservation Officer Vince Leppoma made the arrests. The fishermen were fishing at Back Bay of Biloxi and four were fishing around Deer Island.

Two other men were arrested after officers saw them allegedly stealing crabs from crab traps at the mouth of Fort Bayou in Jackson County.

Leppoma identified those

George Wallis, 36, of 204 Eastland, Ocean Springs, and Jack Rutland, 70, of 335 St. Mary Blvd., Biloxi, both charged with possession of undersized speckled trout;

Vades Head, 61, of 4513 Stenum, Ocean Springs; and James Hebert, 22, of Back Bay Apartments, No. 11, Biloxi, both charged with theft of crabs from crab pots.

All were ticketed and released pending hearings in justice court.

If convicted of possessing undersize speckled trout or redfish, a fisherman may face a $100-$500 fine.

Annual Fourth of July Crab Festival made successful by families working together

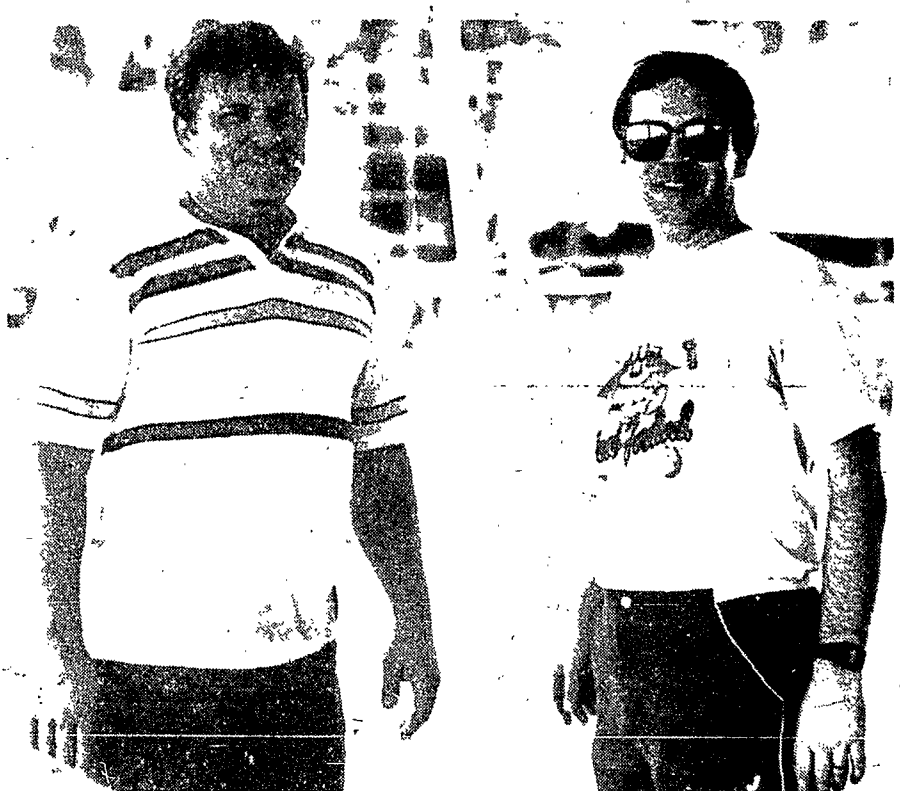

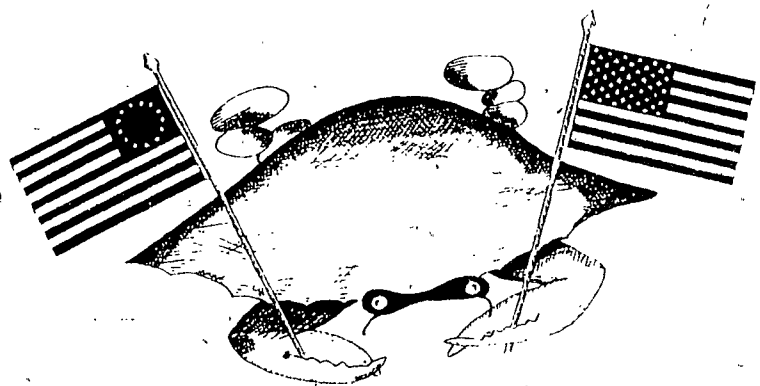

The Fourth of July Crab Festival sponsored by Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church is the culmination of a year's work by local parishioners. It is not unusual to find three generations of local families working side-by-side preparing for the annual event—which the church has come to rely on for financial support in its annual budget. Year after year the same faces behind the booths are visible.

AMERICAN MASTERS

"American Masters" salutes the big screen this summer with tributes to film director Preston Sturges, Martin Scorsese and John Cassavetes. The fifth season of the series also includes portraits of composer Cole Porter, record producer John Hammond and newsman Edward R. Murrow.

Director, screenwriter and playwright Preston Sturges was 1940s Hollywood's most brilliant satirist, with such films as The Lady Eve, The Palm Beach Story and Hail the Conquering Hero targeting everything from politics and advertising to sex and hero worship.

But when he left Paramount for an association with Howard Hughes, his box office appeal waned and his career plummeted.

"Preston Sturges: The Rise and Fall of an American Dreamer," premiering at 9 p.m., Monday, July 2, on the Mississippi Educational Television Network, explores his legacy to the American cinema through clips from his work and interviews with the people who worked closely with him, including Joe McCrea and Betty Hutton.

Abundant squash is versatile side dish

Increasing amounts of summer squash are appearing in home gardens, farmers markets and produce departments. Actually the term summer squash is misleading since these mild, thin-skinned squash are available almost year-round.

During late winter they come from Mexico. Other areas furnishing local supplies of summer squash include Florida, California, Texas, New Jersey, Georgia, South Carolina and a number of other states.

Squash from local areas is best and costs less.

Summer squash is harvested at an immature stage and is completely edible. One pound of fresh, plump squash will yield about three servings of one-half cup each.

Summer squash has many relatives including pumpkins, gourds, cucumbers, muskmelons and watermelons. In the immediate family are the straightneck, yellow crookneck, patty pan or scallops and zucchini.

Zucchini, is probably the most popular of the summer squash. Classified as an Italian variety, it is cylinder shaped, fairly straight, and dark green with lighter green stripes. The flesh is greenish white. The small, darker ones are normally the best quality.

Yellow summer crookneck and straightneck are the most universally used. They're lemon yellow or light golden yellow when at their best quality.

Scallop or Patty Pan is the small disc-shaped squash with scalloped edges. They are pale green when young, becoming white as they mature.

Summer squash is best when the skin looks fresh and glossy, and the flesh punctures easily. If the skin is hard or shriveled, the seeds may be hard and the flesh stringy. Over-mature zucchini will feel spongy rather than firm.

Unlike the hard-shelled winter squash varieties, summer squash is quite perishable. Keep them in the refrigerator in a moisture-proof container and use them within a few days.

Also, to maintain the delicate distinctive flavor of summer squash to not drown it in water during cooking, or over cook.

Summer squash is delicious frozen, canned or pickled. To freeze—select young squash with small seed and tender rind. Wash, but in 1/2-inch slices and heat in boiling water (not salted) 3 minutes, chill in cold water promptly, drain, package, label and freeze.

Summer squash is a versatile food and can be used as an appetizer or a dessert. Fresh raw slices are excellent with a dip (for a low-calorie dip, use well-seasoned cottage cheese put through the blender). Add thin slices of squash to a tossed salad.

Summer squash can be cut into strips, dipped into milk, flour or cracker crumbs and deep fat fried until golden brown about 5 minutes.

Also, stuff squash with a meat or cheese mixture for a good main dish. Cut squash lengthwise and remove most of the pulp. Combine pulp with finely chopped leftover roast, partly cooked ground beef or grated cheese, grated onion and bread crumbs. Season to taste and fill squash with mixture. Bake about 20 minutes at 350 degrees. To provide variety, bake squash in a tomato sauce.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katie McGuire Caire

Brother, can you spare a rib—or a whole batch of 'em? The answer's an emphatic "yes" at our area supermarkets, which are well-stocked with spare ribs at special prices, from small to medium to large, for your holiday or other meals.

And, if you're firing up the barbecue pot or grill, and would like a variation from your usual barbecue sauce, you might want to try one which I found just a couple of days ago in a book which had just arrived at my house. It's "Firecracker Barbecue Sauce."

(As the editors point out, you'll have "Fourth-of-July flavor anytime" with this concoction. The book, "Cook Now, Serve Later" has just been issued by the Reader's Digest Association, Inc. I was quickly thumbing through it when this recipe caught my eye. Can't wait to get back to this time, which contains recipes from a number of fine cookbooks, and will let you know more about in the "Cooking Up A Storm" column as soon as I finish! Meanwhile, here's:

FIRECRACKER BARBECUE SAUCE

1/2 cup cider vinegar
1 cup water
1/4 cup sugar
2 Tbsp. prepared mild yellow mustard
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. black pepper
1/2 tsp. paprika

1 medium-sized yellow onion, thinly sliced

2 thick slices lemon

1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter or margarine

1 cup ketchup

1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce

1. In a small, heavy saucepan, combine the vinegar, water, sugar, mustard, salt, pepper, paprika, onion, lemon and butter and bring to a boil over moderately high heat. Reduce the heat to low and simmer, uncovered, stirring occasionally, for 20 minutes. Remove from the heat and stir in the ketchup and Worcestershire sauce.

(At this point, the sauce can be cooled to room temperature and stored. Refrigerate in a tightly covered container for up to 4 days, or freeze in a labeled, tightly covered, freezable container or one-pint freezer bag for up to 3 months at 0 degrees F.)

2. Use sauce for basting grilled, broiled or roasted meats or poultry. (Makes 1 1/4 cups).

I also tried this sauce on chicken thighs and drumsticks, with equal success; and, with chicken leg quarters on special just now at the markets, you might want to use them, or cook both ribs and chicken! Chicken breast quarters are also specially priced. And, since I've a bit of sauce left over, I think I'll try that on my hamburger patty at lunchtime; ground beef's an extra-good buy this week, as it happens.

And, with chicken wings also a good buy this week, you've the solution to keeping the hungry diners from starving while the chef goes through the ritual of the barbecue. Serve them:

MINI-DRUMS DRUMETTES IN BEER SAUCE

These, as you know are not drumsticks at all, but the first meaty joint of the chicken wing, just a few bites each. You can buy them already disjointed from the wing tips and such if you don't want to bother, but it isn't that much trouble, and besides, you'll have soup or stock makings from the remainder of the wings! And, you'll save money!

2 or 3 dozen mini-drumsticks
1/2 cup soy sauce
1 cup pineapple juice
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 clove garlic, minced
1 heaping Tbsp. minced onion

Level tsp. ground ginger
1 cup tired beer (open the beer, let it sit awhile)

Batter for browning chicken pieces

First, of course, cut off the tip and end joint of the wings. Combine the soy sauce and pineapple juice and brown sugar. Toss in the garlic, onion and ground ginger, and add the cup of tired beer. Mix it all together, and pour this sweet-sour marinade over the mini-drumsticks, in a deep bowl, so that all pieces are well bathed in the sauce.

Marinate for three hours or more in the refrigerator (or for an hour or so at room temperature). Drain off the marinade, and set it aside. Film the bottom of a heavy skillet or pan. (I use a cast iron skillet) with enough butter to brown the chicken pieces, and do so.

Add a half cup of the marinade to the skillet, cover, and simmer for 20 minutes or so over a low fire, until tender. Peek in the pan from time to time, and add more marinade if needed so that the chicken doesn't dry out.

Serve hot, either in the sauce, or with the sauce in a separate bowl for dunking. The other day, I served the mini-drumsticks in a chafing dish, with sliced hot dogs and sausage links and tiny meatballs as well—for a party, and they disappeared quickly!

These mini-drumsticks are also tasty, Southern fried chicken style, in their crisp batter coats. They also freeze well, so that you can make up a batch when you're in the mood, and save for later use, when you're not in a cooking mood—from my cookbook, "Katy's Cookbook, Cooking Up A Storm."

And for the "good go-withs"—russet potatoes are a good buy just now, as are bell (green) peppers, cucumbers, tomatoes and okra.

Good buys from the fruit bins: watermelon (whole melons or sections) and peaches and more peaches, as well as grapes and nectarines and Bing cherries. Enjoy the savings and the food!

Center Stage repeats 'Steel Magnolias'

Center Stage in Biloxi's Petit Bois Specialty Center is repeating last year's record-breaking production of "Steel Magnolias."

Performances are scheduled for July 3 through 7 at 8 p.m. and on July 1 and July 8 at 3 p.m.

Presented as a special summer fundraiser, tickets range from $5.75 to $9.50 with discounts available for students and senior citizens.

Directed by Chuck White, the cast includes J. Dagny Bell, Natalie Nolan Howard, Kathryn Lewis, Ruth Ann Pecoul and Gayle Roy of Bay St. Louis from the original production and newcomer Rebecca Dickenson in the role of Shelby.

Reservations for the popular show, which played for 33 performances to sell-out crowds last year are necessary and may be made by calling 388-6258.

The box office is open from noon to 6 p.m. daily, and messages are taken on a 24-hour answering machine.

"Steel Magnolias" is funded in part by a grant from the Mississippi Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts.

KNS Theatre to present 'South Pacific'

Special to the Echo
KNS Theatre is currently in rehearsal for the classic Rodgers and Hammerstein II musical, South Pacific, which will be the opening production of KNS's third season.

South Pacific, which will be presented at the Biloxi Saenger Theatre on July 27, 28 and 29, is under the direction of Kinard Fite, resident artistic director.

Leading a parade of talent is Pamela Rae Jones, portraying Nellie Forbush, the cockeyed optimistic American nurse who never seems to be able to wash a man right out of her hair.

Rob Gill has been cast as Emile De Becque, the dashing handsome French plantation owner who longs for the right girl and some enchanted evening.

The young and innocent American Naval officer, Lt. Joseph Cable, is played by David Delk who brings his own special singing abilities to the hitling "Younger than Springtime."

Doris Pickering portrays Liat, the beautiful Polynesian native who falls in love with Lt. Cable.

With her opening number, "Bali Ha'i," Bloddy Mary, played by Seanie Wade, steals all hearts and the show while selling anything not bolted down to the gullible Seabees who infest her island paradise.

Leading this gullible Seabee pack is Luther Bills, hilariously portrayed by Ben Wimberley Jr., a longtime Coastal theatrical favorite.

With a sterling chorus of some 46 members, this superlative cast will sing and dance its way through this Rodgers and Hammerstein's II memorable musical.

Winner of eight Tony Awards, South Pacific is the story of a tropical island occupied by U.S. Naval forces during World War II.

Mary Evans Weaver, resident choreographer, will once again create more rousing dance sequences for which she is so famous. Kathy Doge, one of the Coast's most accomplished musicians, will be the musical director of the full theatre orchestra.

It must be your best to win the prize ribbon

By Dr. Milo Burnham

Summer without vegetable and flower shows isn't summer at all. For a few gardeners it may be enough to know they've got the first ripe tomato, watermelon or pepper in the neighborhood, but most gardeners look forward to exhibiting what they've grown. Vegetable and flower shows provide this opportunity.

Regardless of when a show is held, it's going to come before or after some vegetables or flowers are ready or at their prime. That's just part of it—it's show time and the show goes on.

Don't get so caught up in the competition that you exhibit flowers or vegetables that are past their prime or too immature to be of any quality.

As a teenager back in New Jersey, I looked forward to the vegetable and flower shows run by the local garden club. The shows were held in the high school gymnasium.

I was never the grand prize winner for specimen flowers or vegetables, and when it came to flower arrangements, no one could beat Mrs. Miriam Taylor. She had a way with flowers that brought her the silver tray at every show.

One summer at show time, I had the best zinnias in town. Each flower was perfect and without a blemish to be found. I'd cut them all with stems about 6 inches long, because I didn't want to sacrifice any developing flower buds left on the plants.

Those big, beautiful zinnias set level with the top of a standard show container and of course failed to get a blue ribbon. It was a painful learning experience, but it taught me a valuable lesson—cut flowers with the stems as long as possible. You can always shorten them, but you can't add to them.

When gathering exhibits from your garden take a pair of pruning shears or scissors with you so the vegetables and flowers can be cut and not pulled from the plants. This may come as a surprise, but most vegetables should be exhibited with a short piece of stem attached.

This holds true for snap beans, lima beans, cucumbers and summer squash as well as eggplant, peppers and green tomatoes.

With you tugging at one end to pull a vegetable from the plant and the plant holding on, chances are what comes off in our hand won't have a stem and may not be the entire vegetable.

A cantaloupe isn't exhibited with a piece of stem because as the melon ripens the stem separates from the melon. Any cantaloupe with a firmly attached stem is a green melon. A watermelon or honeydew melon should have a short piece of stem.

Always harvest more than the exhibit calls for just in case one of the items gets damaged. If you need 12 pods of hot pepper, take about 15 to allow for damage.

But, remember, only exhibit the correct number. If the exhibit calls for three marigolds, put only three flowers in the container whether they are on the same stem or three different stems. However, if the exhibit calls for three stems of marigolds, then the exhibit may consist of more than three flowers, but only three stems.

Don't place green and red tomatoes or green and red peppers in the same exhibit. When transporting both green and ripe tomatoes to the show don't put them in the same container. Green tomatoes are exhibited with their stems attached, and the stems on the green fruit can puncture the ripe tomatoes.

As already pointed out, stems are important to flower exhibits and so are the leaves. All leaves should be free of dirt, disease and insect damage. With some of the large flowered, dwarf plants it isn't possible to exhibit the flowers with long stems. List the variety name on the exhibit tag when possible so the judge won't count off points for stem length.

When an exhibit consists of more than one vegetable specimen on a plate or flower in a container, the key to success is to have them all as similar as possible; the same size, shape, color and stage of maturity.

Take the time to count and recount the number of items called for and those exhibited. If the entry calls for 12 pods of pepper, exhibiting 13 or 14 doesn't make it better. It is cause for disqualification or at the least the loss of one ribbon place.

Place flowers in arrangements individually to avoid the impression of a handful of stems jammed in a jar. It takes time to make an attractive floral arrangement, so make your arrangements at home and bring them to the show, and allow yourself plenty of time to prepare and enter your exhibits before judging begins.

MISSISSIPPI ARMY AMMUNITION PLANT ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT

An Environmental Assessment Study on the deactivation of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant was completed on 8 June 1990. It was made available for public review beginning 19 June 1990, extended through 19 July 1990. The document is available at the following locations:

Gulfport Public Library, 21st Ave. and 14th St., Gulfport, MS
Biloxi Public Library, 139 Lemoine St., Biloxi, MS
Pass Christian Public Library, 111 Hiern Ave., Pass Christian, MS

Sidelall Public Library, 555 Robert Blvd., Sidelall, LA 70450

Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant, Admin Bldg, 9110, Stennis Space Center, MS
The assessment contains a Finding of No Significant Impact. It further predicted both positive and negative impacts. Positive impacts would be improvement of the air and water quality and reduction of the potential for accidental release of hazardous/toxic substances to the environment. Adverse impacts were associated with socio-economic effects to the region. These effects may be significant during both the realignment and post realignment periods. However, planned leasing of the facility to private interests has the potential to create a positive impact to the area by increasing the tax base.

Comments should be forwarded to: Commander, Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant, ATTN: SMCMS-EN, Stennis Space Center, MS 39529-7000. For further information, contact Mr. Dana Matherly, (601) 467-8927.
